 - 11 Hore-Belisha to Liddell-Hart (diary, Mar 10, 1944).
 - 12 Cecil King diary, May 10, 1941, quoting W J Brown, sec. of Civil Service Clerical Association.
 - 13 Tel., Masaryk to Prague, London, Mar 15, 1934 (Berber, op. cit., No. 23).
 - 14 Hitler's first reply to Lord Rothermere was on Dec 7, 1933. See the photocopies retained by Rothermere's go-between, Princess Stephanie von Hohenlohe, in her papers, and the two original Ribbentrop files in the Louis P. Lochner collection, Hoover Library.
 - 15 WSC to Clementine, Aug 22, 1934 (Gilbert, vol. v, 559).
 - 16 Alexander Korda told Ladislav Farago (a reporter for News Review) over lunch at the Korda home in Swiss Cottage. (Interview of Farago, Jun 1979; letter Michael Korda to author Jun 1979.)
 - 17 Letter, Bracken to Baruch, May 21, 1947 (Baruch papers).
 - 18 See for instance von Puttkamer's telegram to Raeder from the Berghof, May 24, 1938 (in German naval file PG/36794): 'The Führer must now assume that Britain and France will rank amongst our enemies.'
 - 2 Liddell Hart related this to E Wingfield Stratford, letter, Apr 12, 1942 (Kings College: Liddell Hart papers).

 - 6 Morton to Thompson, Aug 20, 1960 (in R W Thompson, Churchill and Morton [London, 1976], 71).
 - 7 WSC to Hankey, Jan 31, 1936 (Gilbert, vol. v, 702).
 - 8 In Dec 1940 WSC would appoint Mr Justice Singleton to review the secret information. Air Intelligence at that time estimated the enemy front line at 5,710 planes, while MEW put it at 3,000. (WSC to Sinclair, Dec 9, 1940, Cherwell papers.)
 - 9 WSC to Cherwell, May 2, 1947 (ibid.).
 - 10 WSC to Spaatz and reply, Jul 17, 1947 (Library of Congress: Spaatz papers). Spaatz supplied figures from British ADI(K) report 352/1945 on captured GAF Equipment Branch files suggesting that in Sep 1938 Germany had a first line strength of 3,200 mobilised planes, and 4,300 in Sep 1939.
 - 11 Hinsley, vol. i, 53. This, says Prof Hinsley, remained the best source on the subject 'when other sources were providing conflicting and only tentative assessments.'
 - 12 Erhard Milch diary, Aug 20, 1938 (author's microfilm DI-59).
 - 13 Milch diary, Feb 1935.
 - 14 Bruce Lockhart diary, Sep 5, 1943.
 - 15 WSC to Clementine, Apr 13, 1935. Londonderry never deviated from his view that WSC had grossly exaggerated the German airforce and attributed Britain's troubles to the attitude which developed after Simon returned from Berlin. 'Our first line strength at that date was 897 machines, and as I calculated at the time and verified from subsequent information which I received, the first line strength of the German Air

- Force was 12 machines.' Winston's 'delusion' about the German airforce had 'disastrous results' on foreign policy. (Letter to Halifax, Dec 2, 1939, Ld Halifax papers, FO.800/328.)
- 16 Ld Rothermere to Hitler, Apr 29; and reply, May 3, 1935 (Hoover Library, Stanford Univ., Calif.: Hohenlohe papers).
- 17 Milch diary, Jan 12–15, 1935. In Aug 1935 they began planning the 1936 budget. The airforce claimed 4,300m Reichsmarks; Hitler said 3,100m was possible, but Göring warned Milch that they would probably get only 2,000m. Later the 1936 budget (without SA) was set at a total of 7,200m (army 4,200m, navy 680m, airforce 2,300m).
- 18 Rose Kennedy memo, 1940; and WSC to J P Kennedy, Oct 12, 1935 (JPK papers, Kennedy Libr.). WSC had cabled to Ld Beaverbrook on Oct 10 inviting him to dine with Kennedy in Oct at Claridges; B declined (Beaverbrook papers, C.86).

Vice chairman was Sir Robert Mond of ICI; vice presidents were Nobel Peace Prize winner and fellow-traveller Angell, Herbert Morrison, E Sylvia Pankhurst, Canon F Lewis Donaldson, Eleanor Rathbone; chairman, George Latham; hon sec and treasurer, C Q Henriques; council: Monica Whately, A M Wall, V Adams, P Guedalla, A Conley, P Horowitz, F Rodgers ('organising secretary'), L W Carruthers, and M H Davies.
- 5 WSC to FDR, undated, Nov 1940 (FDR Libr., microfilm 1, 0148).
- 6 The fund was controlled by foreign propaganda chief Jan Hajek. In 1923 he paid Steed £10,000, ostensibly for advertising in his Review of Reviews, although it could never handle so much advertising; he paid Steed £8,000 on Nov 27, 1923 and £5,000 six months later, acknowledged by Steed to Dr E Mastny on Mar 27, 1924. Payments continued through the 1930s. He was receiving 8,000 crowns monthly in 1936 (£1 = 200 crowns) and collected £3,000 in 1938. T Masaryk gave him 120,000 crowns – half from the foreign ministry. Czech funds flowed freely to writers like Machray and Poliakoff; Laurence Lyon was slushed with 100,000 crowns for an unpublished book. Newspapers like the Canadian La Presse, Montreal Daily Star, The Gazette, Toronto Star Weekly and Globe were also on the Czech payroll. Prague was even subsidising Alexander Kerensky's anti-Soviet newspapers like Dni and Volja

 - 15 Gilbert, vol. v, 739, quoting Churchill papers 2/282.
 - 16 In 1940 Arthur Harris, commander of No. 5 Bomber Group, discovered that Anderson was reporting directly on his two bomber squadrons to WSC. When he ignored warnings Harris sacked him and posted him to Canada. Anderson protested to the Prof that the real reason was 'because I am regarded as a personal friend of the prime minister's and of other serving ministers. I am therefore regarded as a potential danger.' (Sinclair to WSC, Aug 24; and Anderson to the Prof, Oct 29, 1940: Cherwell papers.) Beaverbrook took him on as personal assistant at MAP despite Sinclair's warnings. In 1942 WSC told him that a number of Sinclair's top secret minutes and copies of all the PM's minutes to Beaverbrook had been found in Anderson's possession. Anderson was invalidated out of the RAF; Beaverbrook referred to him sympathetically as 'the poor fellow who went mad.' (Beaverbrook to Sinclair, Jun 29 and Jul 13, 1942: C.311.) He died in 1982.

- 22 WSC to Baruch, Jan 1 (Princeton Univ.: Baruch papers). Steed left via Canada in Sep 1937, was interviewed by the Montreal Star, which like him was being funded by the Czechs, met the governor-general in Ottawa; crossed into the US on Oct 5, met Sulzberger, Swope and Baruch. He reported to the Focus on Oct 28, and had this to say at Chatham House on Nov 25: ‘I spoke confidentially to the Council on Foreign Relations, to the Foreign Policy Association, to the New York Jewish Committee, to the Harvard Club and various other gatherings. I met also some responsible executive officers of the United States.’ (International Affairs, vol. xvii [1938], No. 1, 51–3.)

8: People Are Buying 'Churchills'

- 1 Ironside diary, Dec 6, 1937.
 - 2 Milch, Gedenken für den Luftkrieg, returned by Karl Bodenschatz, Feb 1, 1937 (Milch papers, deposited by the author at Institut für Zeitgeschichte [hereafter: IfZ], Munich).
 - 3 Sir Herbert Creedy (war office) commented on Steed's memorandum on Germany, 'The value of this report is much reduced by the great exaggeration in it as to the strength of Germany's air force and army. Thus the source estimates that Germany has between 2,000 and 3,000 war 'planes ready for service (i.e., first line): but the Air Ministry estimate is about 1,000 first line and this agrees with the strength given them by the Germans.' (FO.371/19446).
- In FO.371/19914 is further evidence of how avidly Churchill swallowed Steed's data. In October 1936 Steed reported a (fictitious) Hitler speech at Würzburg on Sep 18; warned that Hitler was about to invade France through Switzerland; advised that the Nazis had established a submarine base off the coast of Portuguese Guinea; and talked about the German battleships being under orders to raise 'a good head of steam' (they were in fact diesel-powered). Sending this report to an FO official on October 20, Wickham Steed wrote: 'I mentioned some of it to Mr Winston Churchill last week and he said it "ought to go also to the Government."' Steed added that since his own financial resources had come to an end, 'a wealthy friend' had placed money at his disposal 'for this "research work"' in the summer of 1936. (The Board of Deputies, it will be recalled, had first funded the Focus in July 1936.) He continued, 'I have now six or seven non-Jewish informants on my string.'

 - 22 Masaryk gave £300 to the Czech Committee in London, and mysteriously disbursed no less than £3,987 in the last six months of 1938. On March 16, 1939 (the day after Hitler invaded Prague) Dr Cerny, sent to London to investigate, reported that Masaryk had claimed to have spent the money 'financing official obligations,' had no written receipts, and refused further details. - 34 Osusky, testimony to Czech State Council, London, Mar 11, 1942; introduced as evidence in Prchala, Osusky vs. Bohus Beneš and Another (FO.371/30826). His hostility to President Beneš is plain from his private papers in the Hoover Library; records in Czech state archives bear this out. Osusky first learned of this version on Sep 22 and challenged Beneš for an explanation that day; he further challenged the Prague foreign ministry on Oct 10, 13 and 14, without getting either reply or denial. Bonnet, the foreign minister . . . has also protested against being rung up by Churchill and Spears from London for information. . . Van[sittart] remains in charge of all propaganda and is almost certainly in touch with Churchill, Eden, the Labour leaders and with Léger in the Qual d'Orsay, who is playing the same tricks over here.' - 9 The government had made a £10 million loan to Czechoslovakia, including £6 million for economic reconstruction and £4 million for Czech refugees; this resulted in one Czech family receiving £753,000 and another £537,000 (T.210/20 and FO.371/24292).
- 10 Weininger's bank statement is in T.210/5. A treasury letter of Sep 26, 1940 (FO.371/24292, fol. 208) describes his compensation claim as fraudulent. File T.210/23 is still closed. A handwritten note of Oct 21, 1938 in FO.371/21588 links Churchill's Intelligence source Desmond Morton with Jan Masaryk and Weininger, who 'put Mr Morton in touch with the Czech Legation.'

- 44 Kennedy to State dept., Tel. No. 1158, May 10, 1940, 2:00 P.M. Kennedy predicted trouble over this. 'This may result in another bitter fight while the world is burning.' Earlier on May 10 (according to Dalton's diary) Sinclair urged Attlee that Chamberlain remain until the crisis was past; he then issued a statement to The Times: 'Recent events have proved the necessity for a prompt and radical reconstruction of the British Government; but the opening of the first critical battle in the West is not the moment.'

- 16 Brooke made no reference to the 'document wallet' in his authentic (ink) diary. After he visited 4th and 3rd Divisions to discuss plans for the attack, 'GHQ had another conference at 7:00 P.M. [I] found the atmosphere entirely changed and was at once presented with 5th Division to hold Ypres-Comines Canal. They have now realised the danger I warned them about this morning. The penetration scheme [the Weygand plan] is temporarily abandoned.' Later

(PREM.3/188/6; the message itself has been withdrawn, like much of this file.) Horace Wilson would write in Oct 1941, 'Léger was violently anti-German, equally violently anti-Italian, and he must bear much of the responsibility for the failure to take advantage of the opportunities offered from time to time by either Hitler or Mussolini for some kind of rapprochement.' Major Thomas Ingram, the archivist of Lord Halifax's papers (now at the Borthwick Institute, York) informed the author (Feb 1987) that Halifax evidently began dictating the intermittent journal for his family in 1940 when his children were dispersed and he himself had moved into the Dorchester Hotel. 'These typewritten diary-letters, together with the "secret" diary, were passed to me by Lord Halifax and are just as I received them.' Halifax appears to have related the cabinet dispute to Kennedy: see Kennedy to State dept., Tel. No. 1400, May 27, 9:00 P.M. Peace moves were in the air: 'Churchill, Attlee and others will want to fight to the death but there will be others who realise that physical destruction of men and property in England will not be a proper offset to loss of pride.'

- 26: Breakneck
- 1 WSC to FDR, in Kennedy to State dept., Tel. No. 1628, Jun 13 (US embassy in London, secret file). Gilbert wrongly dates this Jun 11 and applies it to Churchill's previous trip.
- 2 English minutes are in Reynaud papers, file 74AP27; and CAB.99/3. Three French participants wrote accounts: Reynaud; Baudouin, first in a memoir titled, 'À propos d'un nouveau livre de M Kammerer' and then in, 'Neuf mois de Gouvernement'; de Margerie, Reynaud's directeur du cabinet, took an almost verbatim note (in 74AP27). Cf. Kennedy to State dept., Tel. No. 1650, Jun 14; WSC to Dominion high commissioners, Jun 14, 5:00 A.M. (FO.800/310); and Beaverbrook memo, Sep 11, 1946

- (Beaverbrook papers, D.480).
- 3 In German captivity Reynaud often recalled those words, 'in her power and her dignity,' e.g., in letter to Pétain, Apr 23, 1941 (Reynaud papers and FDR Library, PSF, box 34, 'Biddle'). Leahy had sent copies to Washington. Reading them, Churchill ordered them circulated to the cabinet: 'Pray God we never get in such a jam! . . . They vindicate us before history. WSC 8.vii.' He wanted them published but – to protect Reynaud – the Americans declined. (Churchill however used the 'neck wrung like a chicken' quotation in his Ottawa speech. FO.371/28570.)
 - 4 Spears, Assignment to Catastrophe, vol. ii, 215. Spears is not always reliable, as Reynaud later commented: 'Le Général Spears . . . est devenu avant d'écrire ses mémoires, l'adversaire de la France, malveillant pour tous les Français, moi compris, du fait du conflit franco-britannique en Orient, auquel il a pris part.' (Reynaud MS, 74AP27.)
 - 5 Spears diary, citing M Dejean (Spears papers, 2/18).
 - 6 Deposition by Weygand, proces de Riom; and Témoignages, l'Armistice (Paris, 1944, Édition de Minuit).
 - 7 Sent at 1 P.M. Washington time, Jun 13; cf. Berle diary, Jun 13. According to Halifax's diary, Churchill told the cabinet: 'If he will consent to have this published, it pretty well commits America to war.'
 - 8 CAB.65/7. Kennedy takes the credit for this. 'The call came through while he was with Churchill and he persuaded Roosevelt to withdraw it [the permission to publish] in Churchill's presence. Said Churchill hated him from then on.' (Hoover Library: Herbert Hoover, memo dated Apr 19, 1945). But Berle's diary makes Hull's role plain.

 - 26 'Conversations téléphoniques enregistrées à Bordeaux pendant les journées du 15 au 17 Juin 1940 au Palais Gallien' (in 74AP22, file 'Divers'). Charles Eade pointed out to Reynaud in May 1953 that in Le Procès du Marshall Pétain (vol. i, 97) he had called these intercepts false.
 - 27 On Jun 16 Lieut.-Col. Villelume noted, 'Tard dans la soirée, le général de Gaulle revient de Londres. Il revele . . . qu'il est avec Jean Monnet, l'auteur du projet, et que c'est lui qui la fait accepter par Churchill.'

 - 30 Hankey to Halifax, Jun 22; reply, Jun 23 (FO.800/312).
 - 31 Edwards diary, Jun 16. Louis Marin recorded the events of that afternoon: 'À 17h Reynaud annonce que la Note de

12h30 est retirée. Il lit le nouveau texte anglais apporté par Campbell à 3h30. Ybar et Pomaret déclarent qu'ils ne veulent pas être sujets anglais. Chautemps: Le texte donne lieu à des observations. Le projet est écarté. Chautemps reparle de l'armistice et de la nécessité de provoquer un choc psychologique sur l'opinion. . . Pour justifier la résistance devant l'opinion, il faut connaître les buts de l'Allemagne. . . Un ministre suggère une nouvelle tentative auprès des Anglais pour être relevés de la parole donnée. Reynaud répond: 'C'est un autre que moi qui fera cette démarche.' . . . Louis Marin rappelle la parole donnée et le devoir de le respecter. Il demande à Reynaud s'il juge que l'honneur de la France est engagé avec sa parole. Reynaud: Parfaitement – totalement.' He resigned, noting in his papers: 'La majorité se prononce par Chautemps sans attacher grande importance à l'offre anglaise. J'annonce mon démission.' (Reynaud papers: Louis Marin notes. Letters, Reynaud to Pétain, April 5 and 23, 1941: Reynaud papers and Campbell despatch.)

27: The Diehard

- 1 Hewel papers. Some items were re-typed on Hitler's special typewriter.
- 2 In 1946 and 1964. Prytz revealed it in 1965. Der Spiegel, No. 40/1965; The Times, Oct 10, 1965; and Prytz's obituary, Daily Telegraph, Jul 30, 1976.
- 3 The Italian minister in Stockholm, Francesco Fransonì, reported this urgently to Ciano at 7:30 A.M.: 'The British representative [Sir Victor Mallet] requested an interview with the Swedish foreign minister and notified him that the British government is inclined to enter into peace negotiations with Germany and Italy. The Secretary General of the foreign ministry here immediately informed me and in reply to my inquiry confirmed specifically that this declaration by the British representative is of official character.' (Documenti Diplomatici Italiani, 9, v, No. 47, Jun 18; cf. No. 48, Jun 21.) This was evidently intercepted by German codebreakers (Naval staff war diary, Jun 22). Sweden notified her envoy in Berlin, Arvid Richert; and on Jun 22 he related this to von Weizsäcker (Aufzeichnung Nr. 454, June 19: 'Akten zur Deutschen Auswärtigen Politik,' series D IX, Dok.487).
- 4 Swedish foreign minister Christian Gunther showed it to Mallet on Jun 19 and asked – no doubt to satisfy inquiries from Berlin – precisely how it was to be interpreted (Mallet to FO, Tel. No. 743, Jun 19, FO.800/322). The relevant paragraphs are blanked out in CAB.65/7.

- 67 Colville and Dalton diaries, Jul 16; the PM's card mentions only Col. Menzies at 6:45 P.M. and Ld Swinton, postponed from 7:45 to 10:30.
- 68 The identity of MUW is a mystery. On Aug 30, Morton told WSC, 'I have . . . invited MUW to consider immediate steps for a bribery and propaganda campaign in North Africa' (PREM.7/2). To Ismay on Sep 3 Morton mentioned his committee and 'such Departments' as FO, MEW, MUW, and Mol. On Sep 6 he wrote to WSC that his committee was trying to meet a COS requirement for a coup d'état in Syria and Morocco, 'but MUW is unfortunately not in a position to render rapid help, either through bribery, propaganda or other means.' (PREM.7/3.)

Bernd von Lossberg (T-608/1); cf. naval staff war diary, Jul 2.
- 3 Lossberg's plan (FRITZ) for the attack on Russia was nearing completion when Hitler arrived in Berlin on Jul 6 (Lossberg papers, in the author's possession). Wehrmacht adjutant Lieut.-Col. Rudolf Schmundt notified Luftwaffe adjutant Major Nicolaus von Below at Hitler's Black Forest HQ (interview of Below, 1967). Gen. Franz Halder diary, Jul 2; explaining this entry he told British interrogators in Aug 1945: 'About this time [von Brauchitsch] asked me to begin operational thinking about Russia.' Jodl recalled to gauleiters in Nov 1943 that Hitler told him about the planned attack on Russia 'during the western campaign' (ND: 172-L).
- 4 The deception character of SEALION was confirmed by Jodl at Nuremberg, Nov 1945. The OKW's Dr Wolfgang Cartellieri, in a postwar paper on 'Die Amtsgruppe Wehrmacht Propaganda,' makes it plain that 'special emphasis was placed on deceiving German troops also, up to high command levels (hohe Führerstellen).'

 14 When Rougier first published details in his book, Les Accords Pétain-Churchill

- (Montreal, 1945), he was denounced by the Gaullist press as 'valet de Pétain' and 'neo-hitlérien' and dismissed as professor of philosophy at Besançon. He defended himself in a paper, in Ecrits de Paris, Jul 1948, 95–118 (Rougier papers, in private possession).

- 17 Rougier, Mission secrète. In his memo for Frankfurter, he said that Churchill wanted 'nothing less than to send the British Air Force to bomb the Vichy Government.'
- 18 In file FO.371/24361 is one such memorandum headed Entretien avec Weygand. Handwritten in Churchill's ink at top: 'If General Weygand will raise the standard in North Africa. . .' Cf. war cabinet, Oct 28, and FO to Hoare, Nov 1 enclosing a copy: 'The French text is Rougier's own, and the passages in English are our additions.' Strang also sent a copy to Rex Leeper on Nov 7. 'It was seen by the secretary of state and the prime minister and the bits in English are their additions.' However several documents at this point have been closed until 2016.

- 22 [Rougier's] memorandum is in Frankfurter papers, box 98; and letter, Frankfurter to FDR, Dec 24, after talking with [Rougier] (Library of Congress).
- 23 Admiral Moreau would write to Rougier on Feb 28, 1948: 'From 1940 to 1942 as naval commander at Marseilles charged with supervising our merchant navy traffic with our colonial empire, I was able to confirm that whether signed or not, it was the agreements you worked on which governed relations between Britain and France and assured our food supplies.' On Jan 8, 1941 Mr David Eccles, a ministry of economic warfare expert, would negotiate agreements in Madrid with a Vichy expert, M Marchal, which lifted the blockade (testimony of Flandin, Flandin trial, 177f); and see Churchill's statement to the House on Apr 9, 1941 welcoming public assurances offered by Pétain, and coupling this with the fact that Britain had eased the blockade; and the pseudonymous letter from an officer of Darlan's staff in the New York Times, Jul 31, 1945. As for the BBC, see Soustelle, Envers et contre tout (de Londres à Algiers), 88f: 'La BBC refusa désormais de transmettre sur ses ondes aucune attaque contre Pétain, qui demeura pratiquement "tabou" jusqu'au débarquement de 1941.' And Col. 'Passy' (de Wavrin), Souvenirs, 152.
- 24 Muselier, De Gaulle contre la gaullisme, 218.
- 25 However the FO cabled to Lisbon and Tangiers on Oct 30, 'Professor Rougier arrived here a few days ago from Unoccupied France with the knowledge and approval of Marshal Pétain to explain to us the situation at Vichy and to take back with him an impression of the situation here and of the attitude of His Majesty's government.' (FO.371/243-61.)
- 26 Cadogan was doubtful about this, noting: 'We have already covered that ground and it's no good going on nagging' (Cadogan diary, Oct 25). A summary of the Churchill letter was sent to Weygand by the British consul at Tangiers, Anthony Gascoigne, in a letter dated Oct 31. Since in Jun 1945 Churchill would emphasise to the House that Rougier was acting on Pétain's personal instructions, it is clear that the visit to Weygand was a bonus – not the main purpose of the trip.

- 59 Squadron Leader S D Felkin, AI1(k) to Air Commodore A Boyle, director of intelligence, Nov 12, in AIR.2/5238. Felkin noted: 'As this came after S/L Humphrey's visit . . . when he mentioned that a gigantic raid under code-name of 'MOONLIGHT SONATA' was in preparation, I thought it well to bring this information to your notice. . . I believe that S/L Humphreys has pretty definite information that the attack is against London and the Home Counties . . . in retaliation for Munich.'

- 65 The diary of 80 Wing (AIR.26/580) is silent on this; but the 3:00 P.M. time is confirmed by the report by DDHO (J Whitworth Jones), 'Note on German Operation MOONLIGHT SONATA and Counter Plan COLD WATER,' Nov 17 (AIR.2/5238 and AIR.8/352). R V Jones, in Most Secret War (5th ed.), 536f, challenges this as 'tinged with a degree of hindsight and self-interest.' He points out that the duty group captain in Home Operations had to send out two telegrams on Nov 14: 'Executive Cold Water' when it was sure the raid was on (see note 70), and the target, when identified. The first was sent at 4:15 P.M., with no mention of Coventry. The draft of the second telegram remains on the file with a blank space where the target was to have been named. But there was a bureaucratic reason for this. The lengthy operation orders for COLD WATER were issued earlier on Nov 14. Four possible target areas were foreseen, but Coventry was not among them. Stevenson commented on this. For security reasons, this complicated the issue of the telegram that night, and it was probably communicated verbally; Stevenson minuted later that day, 'the 1300 hrs signal was made today & acknowledged by HQ Air Fleet 3. CAS decided to go ahead with COLD WATER and I spoke to Commands [author's italics] and issued instructions at 16:15 hrs.'

66 The late Miki Clayton, one of the principal WAAF liaison officers between Chichester(?) Sands intercept station and Bletchley Park, as well as F C Jones, the senior signals officer at Kingsdown listening post, are certain of this. So Clayton wrote to Winterbotham on Sep 23, 1980; and see her book The Enemy is Listening (London, 1980).

67 Group Capt. F W Winterbotham, letter in TLS, Jun 25, 1976; memos of Apr 26, 1979, and May 27, 1980; letter to the author, Jan 23, 1984.

68 Information from the present Lady Tweeddale.

69 The whole talk of London may have been a decoy. The pencilled diary of Gen. Hoffmann von Waldau, chief of Luftwaffe operations staff (in the author's possession), mentions only Coventry: 'To Richthofen's at Trouville for conf with Canaris. Evening: heavy attack planned against Coventry. Weather and visibility conditions good.' But London was heavily attacked the next night.

70 director of home operations, telegrams en claire to Fighter, Bomber and Coastal Commands, and 80 Wing, Nov 14; time of origin 16:15 hrs, time of despatch 16:21 (AIR.2/5238 and AIR.8/35).

71 This is according to Sir John Martin's loyal recollection in a letter to The Times, Aug 28, 1976.

'Railroads or all other property in South America or elsewhere were not wanted by us.' Wickard limited himself to the observation 'that many people in the country had the idea that the British were holding back part of their resources, their securities.' FDR and Morgenthau declared themselves satisfied that these had all been pledged. (FDR Library: Claude R Wickard papers).

- 49 According to Berle it reached Washington in January. 'We had the memorandum for the General Staff,' he re-

- called (diary, Jul 28, 1944), 'on which the decision to attack was taken, having got it surreptitiously in December [1940].' With justified misgivings, Sumner Welles passed the gist of it to Soviet ambassador Oumansky on Mar 1, but Moscow took it as an attempt to embroil them with Germany (FRUS 1941, vol. i, 712, 714).

- 64 Hopkins memo, Apr 5, 1941 (FDR Library: Hopkins papers, box 307). Churchill asked FDR urgently (but cryptically) if he had received the message about 'his Italian friend' and the president replied, 'No.' Roosevelt obviously did not understand because on Apr 5 Halifax noted in his diary, 'The President told me he had had a telephone call from Winston which he hadn't been able fully to understand, as the connection had been bad, but in which Winston had said something about the Man from Italy. . . .' In a telegram to WSC on Apr 2 the president used the phrase 'your larger friends' meaning 'your larger warships.' A telegram of Apr 11 talked of expectations of making early use of seized Danish and Italian ships.

- 1 Hinsley (vol. i, 320) is coy about which night raids were thus revealed, but the Fighter Command war room log gives scores of precise instances of the government's own foreknowledge. Mar 29, 1941: '16:00 hrs DAC [duty air commodore] special message, Target tonight [will be] Avonmouth & Bristol.' Apr 1: '20:28 hrs, beams. DAC reports, [beam] Cherbourg 345° true on Bristol established, active since 19:00.' Apr 2: '18:00 hrs DAC reported that Avonmouth will be target tonight.' Apr 5: '17:44 hrs [DAC reports] KG.100 have no operations for tonight.' Apr 10: '17:50 hrs. Target tonight. Indications are the East side of Birmingham will be attacked.' - 48 Cadogan diary, Jun 16.
- 49 FO.371/26566. Beneš learned that the SIS saw the Haushofer approach as ‘an excellent opportunity’ and sent a reply ‘purporting to come from the duke.’ Further letters, Beneš learned, had arranged when Hess should fly to the duke’s estate; his actual arrival had created panic in London. Beneš, interview with Compton Mackenzie, Dec 13, 1944 (Hoover Library: Táborský papers, box 4). A 1941 account of what security sources told Beneš is: Prisna duverna zprava z britskeho uredniho prameno [vojenskeho] (ibid., box 6). Haushofer’s letter ‘never reached Hamilton because the Secret Service intercepted it and answered it instead. Several letters were exchanged and in the end Hess actually came to England and he fell into the trap.’ ‘Among leading British personalities,’ Beneš learned, ‘a furious argument is raging as to whether Hess set out . . . with the knowledge and consent of Hitler or not. . . He acted as though he was an official negotiator and expected all the prerogatives accruing from this role.’
- 50 Morton to WSC, Jul 28 (PREM.3/219/2).

43: Turning Point

44: Beaverbrook, BATTLEAXE and

BARBAROSSA

- 1 Clementine Churchill to Hopkins, Apr 10, 1942 (FDR Library: Hopkins microfilm 11).
- 2 Bruce Lockhart diary, Jun 24, 1941 – ‘recently’; PM’s card, Jun 19.
- 3 Colville diary, Jun 5.
- 4 Bevin, cited in memo from A Christiansen to Beaverbrook, Oct 28, 1942 (Beaverbrook papers, C.38).
- 5 Brooke diary, May 13 and 27, Jun 19 (original). Brooke suggested that 20 per cent of AFV output be for spares. ‘This was not appreciated by the PM, who likes to put the whole of his goods in the shop window.’
- 6 Beaverbrook to WSC, Jun 3 (Beaverbrook papers, D.417).
- 7 Beaverbrook–Hess conversation, Sep 9 (Beaverbrook papers, D.443).
- 8 Londoner’s Diary, Evening Standard, Feb 29, 1940. Beaverbrook’s dinner guests were McGovern, James Maxton and Campbell Stephen.
- 9 Greenock By-Election Special reported McGovern’s speech of May 25. According to Cecil King’s diary (Jun 5) Beaverbrook sent Express general manager E J Robertson personally to kill the rival Daily Mirror’s story.
- 10 Tel., WSC to Beaverbrook, Jun 10. McGovern reminded Beaverbrook of the Mar 5, 1940 dinner in his letter of Jul 2, 1941 (copy to WSC). The sheer number of press communiqués, drafts and redrafts in file D.446 testifies to an uneasy conscience.
- 11 Beaverbrook to W J Brown, Apr 16, 1942: ‘I send you my personal good wishes and my hopes and expectations. I cannot oppose the Churchill candidate but I hope the newspapers give you a good show. Mention this telegram to Robertson.’ (State dept. file 841.00/1589.)
- 12 Lee diary, May 27.
- 13 Colville diary, May 29.
- 14 WSC to Dill, Jun 7; Colville diary, Jun 3.
- 15 PREM.4/68/9. Dowding had taken an airforce mission to North America in November 1940; he quarrelled with Slessor and in Canada he expressed views so obnoxious that Churchill decided in March it was ‘high time’ he came home. ‘No reason need be assigned.’ WSC to Beaverbrook, Mar 29 and 31 (Beaverbrook papers, D.29).
- 16 WSC minutes to Ismay, May 27 (cited in Gilbert, vol. vi, 1097).
- 17 Hewel diary, May 31 (in the author’s possession).
- 18 Bletchley intercepts OL/523 and 525.
- 19 For FO scepticism, see FO.371/29479.
- 20 COS meeting with JIC on Apr 22 (CAB.79/11 and file WO.190/893).
- 21 Churchill, vol. iii, 373–7.
- 22 ‘Winston,’ he added proudly, ‘had said Hitler would attack Russia, and said this some four months before’ (Mackenzie King diary, Aug 24).
- 23 Churchill, vol. iii, 320ff. Cf. Eden to WSC, Oct 14 (Gilbert, vol. vi, 1051n).

- 47 Eden minute, Jun 9 (FO.371/26521).
- 48 Cabinet meeting, Jun 9 (CAB.65/22).
- 49 Massey reported this denial to Ottawa on Jun 13. Cripps told him the same on Jun 15: 'It is Cripps view that German motive is not economic, because in his opinion Russia would be prepared to sign any economic agreement which Germany would demand, but that German aim is to remove menace of the Russian Army from her eastern frontiers before it gets too strong.' (MG26, J1, vol. 312).
- 50 Eden cited by Herschel V Johnson, Tel. to State dept., Jun 11. In his Russian memoirs Maisky mentions only Cadogan (641).
- 51 The telegram was in Oshima's chef de mission cypher. Oshima saw Hitler at 7:00 P.M. on Jun 3. Walther Hewel, who made the (now missing) official record, noted in his diary only: 'Andeutungen [Hints about] BARBAROSSA.'
- 52 Hinsley cites only the (classified) Jun 12 report JIC(41)252(0). Sikorski paraphrased this intercept to Biddle on Jun 20; see note 31.
